

Mino Oski Ain Dah Yung

St. Paul, MN

LOEFFLER
CONSTRUCTION & CONSULTING

Integrity Built

The Mino Oski Ain Dah Yung Center is a 42-unit supportive housing project on University Avenue in St. Paul and is geared toward homeless, American Indian young adults between the ages of 18 and 24. Developed in partnership between the Ain Dah Yung Center and Project for Pride in Living, this four-story, 50,000 SF project aims to help the young adults reconnect with their culture and learn to live independently. The property features gathering spaces for cultural ceremonies, workshops for bead-working and drum-making, a sweat lodge, a sacred medicine garden, classrooms, a technology center, job training, and other support services.

This project includes financing through various public and private entities. This project was completed in late 2019.

Client Ain Dah Yung Center

Architect DSGW Architects

Construction Cost $8.25 Million (est)

Project Size 51,759 SF

Loeffler Role Preconstruction & Construction Services