

Mino Oski Ain Dah Yung

St. Paul, MN

Integrity Built

The Mino Oski Ain Dah Yung is a 42-unit supportive housing project on University Avenue in St. Paul geared toward homeless, American Indian young adults between 18 and 24. Developed in partnership between the Ain Dah Yung Center and Project for Pride in Living, this four-story, 51,759 SF project aims to help the young adults reconnect with their culture and learn to live independently. The Center features gathering spaces for cultural ceremonies, workshops for bead-working and drum-making, a sweat lodge, a sacred medicine garden, classrooms, a technology center, job training, and other support services.

This project includes financing through various public and private entities. The Center opened in Fall of 2019.

Client - Ain Dah Yung Center

Architect - DSGW Architects

Construction Cost - $8.25 Million (est)

Project Size - 51,759 SF

Loeffler Role - Preconstruction & Construction Services

